REPUBLICAN INCONSISTENCIES.

In the Fifty first or Mr. Reed's Congress, a bill drafted by John L. Davenport, Federal Election Supervisor of New York, and introduced by Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, and generally known as the Force bill, passed the House of Representatives by three majorities. The bill was designed to perpetuate Harrison's rule at Washington and end the free coinage agitation by preventing the election of silver men from the South and West. Under its provisions the States had no control of elections for Representatives in Congress. Federal officials, guarded by bayonets, took charge of the polling places, counted the votes and made such returns as they pleased. The local authorities were utterly ignored, the people having nothing whatever to do with ascertaining the result of an election. The ballots were canvassed by Federal officials and the returns made to Federal officials who were not accountable to the people and from whose decision the people had no appeal. H. E. Bartine, Representative in Congress from Nevada, voted for this infamous measure and by doing so opened an impassable gulf between himself and a large majority of the advocates of free coinage in the House of Representatives. The act virtually destroyed his usefulness in Congress and he has not been able to get a bill nor a resolution through the House since he voted for the Force bill. Against the bill, when it reached the Senate, Senators Stewart and Jones took a decisive stand. Senator Jones openly denounced it in the campaign two years ago and he was re-elected without opposition. Senator Stewart made the great speech of his life against it in the United States Senate. He pronounced it the most despotic measure that was ever attempted to be placed on the statutes of the United States; the most infamous bill that ever crossed the threshold of the Senate, and declared its provisions more prejudicial to human liberty than secession. The bill was defeated in the Senate, Stewart and Jones of Nevada voting against it, as did also Cameron of Pennsylvania and every free coinage Republican in the Senate.

The course of our Senators on this bill was approved by the Nevada Legislature which was overwhelmingly Republican, and, as a consequence, the act of Mr. Bartine, who voted for the infamous bill, denounced. It was Republicanism in Nevada in February, 1891, to denounce the Force bill, but to-day it is Republicanism to laud Mr. Bartine and endorse him for the United States Senate because he voted for it. It was Republicanism in Nevada on the 30th of last April to condemn Harrison's administration and oppose the election of any person to office who was not known to be unequivocally in favor of opening the mints for the free and unlimited coinage of silver. To-day it is Republicanism in Nevada to uphold Harrison and denounce anybody and everybody who is advocating the election of a free coinage President.

The Nevada Legislature of 1891, which was almost wholly Republican, condemned the Force bill and by resolution, which passed unanimously, commended our Senators for defeating it. Now the Harrison leaders in Nevada through their organ, the Virginia Enterprise, say the bill was misjudged and they want Bartine, who voted for it, elected United States Senator. A Republican State Convention in Virginia City on April 30, 1892, condemned Harrison's administration and declared against electing any person to office who was not known to be unequivocally in favor of opening the mints for the free and unlimited coinage of silver. Now a Republican State Convention in Reno endorses Harrison and asks the people of Nevada to give him the electoral vote of the State, and the Gazette, whose publisher was a member of the Virginia City Convention which denounced Harrison, now advocates his election. Have the Republican leaders of Nevada forgotten the remarks of Lincoln and imagine they can fool all the people all the time?

The passage of a free coinage bill would cause the greatest business boom ever experienced in Nevada. It would double the population and enhance the value of property fifty per cent., and yet persons for the sake of office advocate the election of men who are opposed to it.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

Matters of Interest From Home and Abroad.

Oregon News.
PORTLAND, Or., September 29.—The celebrated dispute between the rival factions of the Evangelical Association of North America, was decided by Judge Stearns in the State Circuit Court to-day in favor of defendants. The decision places the entire property of the Evangelical Church in this State in the hands of Bishops Bowman and Easer, who were suspended prior to the general Oregon conference of 1890. Frank G. Lenz, who is making a tour of the world on a bicycle, arrived here to-day. He left New York June 4. From here he will go to San Francisco.

About midnight last night the north-bound overland train on the Southern Pacific ran into an obstruction near Cottage Grove. The pilot threw it off the track, however, and no damage was done. An investigation showed that an iron rail, 30 feet long, had been laid squarely across the track. The company has offered a reward of $2,000 for the arrest and conviction of the culprits.

A Matter of Concern.
WASHINGTON, September 29.—The embargo placed upon American commerce by the action of some of the Central American countries closing their ports to ships from the United States is a matter of deep concern to the State Department. Aside from the actual loss to our merchants, resulting from the action, the interruption to the mails is a source of vexation. The unnecessary dread of the introduction of cholera led to the issue of these troublesome decrees. The U. S. steamer Concord went to Colon yesterday to convey the Consul General of the United States and Commissioners from the local government of Panama to Orthogenia, where President Colombia resides, and endeavor to arrange some terms of settlement of the quarantine question. The Pacific mail steamer Colombia still lies off Colon unable to enter.

Will Put in Pneumatic Tubes.
WASHINGTON, September 29.—The committee appointed by the Postmaster General to examine into the subject of more rapid dispatch of mail matter between the large cities and postoffice stations in large cities by means of pneumatic tubes or other devices, submitted a preliminary report, stating it was not possible in the time allowed before the Fall rains set in to make a proper examination of all the systems proposed, but recommends the acceptance of the offer of the Pneumatic Transit Company of New Jersey to put down in Philadelphia between the postoffice and its branches pneumatic tubes without expense to the department and without charge for a year's use of them as a test.

Switchmen's Convention.
DALLAS, Texas, September 29.—The Convention of Switchmen of North America adjourned this afternoon. John W. Wilson of Lacrosse, Wis., was elected Grand Master. Frank Sweeney, the Minneapolis retiring Grand Master, was elected editor and manager of the Switchman's Journal. The defeat of Sweeney was due to the Buffalo strike. It is reported among delegates here that since the successful substitution at Homestead of State militia for Pinkertons the labor organizations generally resolved to abandon strikes and seek redress for grievances through the ballot box, which means the consolidation of all labor organizations in a great political party.

Claim the Assignment Was Illegal.
NEW YORK, September 29.—Counsel for assignee Gould of the firm of Field, Lindley & Welschert applied to Judge Pratt in Brooklyn to-day to vacate the order directing judgment for creditor Dietz to be allowed to examine the books. Gould made an affidavit that the liabilities are about two millions and that everything is in confusion. He has been able to collect only about forty thousand, but hoped to get as much more. Counsel for Dietz argued that the assignment to Gould was illegal and was to defraud the creditors and should be set aside.

The Decision Affirmed.
NEW YORK, September 29.—General Term of the Supreme Court handed down a decision this morning in appeal from Judge Bartlett's decision refusing to grant a mandamus to compel the Board of Supervisors to convene and reappoint the Assembly districts according to the constitution. General Term affirms the decision of Judge Bartlett, which practically holds the apportionment made by the Kings county Board of Supervisors legal and constitutional.

Operators Arrested.
CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, September 29.—The first sensational developments in the operators' strike occurred at midnight last night by the company ordering the arrest of three operators who came in from the South. The charge made is tampering with wires. This morning the men appeared in court, but the prosecution failed and the operators were dismissed.

A Probable Lynching See.
SAN ANTONIO, Texas, September 29.—James Koon and Charles Mosely, two prominent ranchmen of this county, were waylaid and murdered by two Mexican cowboys yesterday. The assassins were captured and, as the excitement is high, lynching is not improbable.

Martha Wilkes, 2:08 1-4.
EVANSVILLE, Ind., September 29.—Budd Doble broke another world's record this afternoon. He drove Martha Wilkes a mile in the free for all trot in 2:08 1-4. It was announced from the judges' stand that it was the greatest heat ever trotted in America, the other great records having been against time.

Shavers' Riot.
BUFFALO, September 29.—A gang of non-union lumber shavers attacked union men this morning while at work at the foot of Genesee street. Revolvers and stones were freely used and three men badly hurt. Thomas McGovern, President of the Lumber Shavers' Union, was arrested and charged with riot.

Large Oil Fire.
MARIETTA, Ohio, September 29.—A large oil fire is raging at Sistersville, W. Va. Four wooden tanks belonging to the Eureka Pipe Line Co. exploded and the contents, 6,500 barrels, is now burning. Theodore Davis, a workman, was killed.

Hanged.
BRANDON, Miss., September 29.—James Scott, colored, was hanged to-day for the murder of his wife last year.

A DIFFERENCE OF OPINION.
Theodore Winters considers Cleveland a True and Tried Friend of the People, and Accepts the Nomination of Elector.

WASHOE CITY, Nev., September 26.
Hon. C. W. Irish, Member of the Democratic State Central Committee: Sir—Your letter of the 13th instant informing me of my nomination on the State Democratic ticket as an elector for Cleveland and Stevenson was duly received. I have been obliged to delay answering it from the fact that since then all my time has been taken up in duties in attendance upon the State Fair, now closed. I accept the nomination tendered me by your committee without reservation of any kind, and shall do all in my power to elect our State and National tickets at this coming election. In a time like this, when treachery, fusion and foolishness can be seen on all sides, it becomes every Democrat to take a firm and forward stand for his party. The time has not been since the days of General Jackson when our party has brought before the people a more true and tried friend of the people than is Grover Cleveland to-day.

It seems to me that the saving of this country from oppression at the hand of an unjust law of taxation, the curtailing of the strength and greed of favored monopolies, and a greater freedom of the laboring and producing classes, depend upon his great honesty of purpose and fearless action, backed by the strong arm of the Democratic party of this nation at this time. Very respectfully,
THEODORE WINTERS.

Peculiar
Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of its kind which can truly be said to be "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and don't produce as good results as Hood's. Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiar in its "goodname" at home, where it is made, that of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly. Do not be induced to buy other preparations, but be sure to get the Peculiar Medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists, etc.; or by mail, prepared by C. I. IMPOSING SCENES AND GRAND PARADE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 21, 1892.
EDITOR JOURNAL:—Tuesday September 20, 1892, will be a date never to be forgotten in the annals of the Grand Army of the Republic, and is worth a place on a page of American history. I regret that one more gifted with the pen than myself is not to assume the task of writing a description of the parade of yesterday. But believing that the old soldiers of Nevada would be interested in a description from a Nevada who was so fortunate as to be permitted to view the great spectacle, I will make no further apology.

A FINE DAY AND GRAND SCENE
The powers above seemed to have taken special pains to prepare a day worthy of the great occasion. Thin, gauzy clouds shrouded the sun's heat, and a cool and gentle breeze kept blowing the entire day. The asphalt pavement of Pennsylvania Avenue was just like a floor for marching and thousands of banners and flags of every description on every building on either side of the street, made it present an appearance of dazzling beauty.

No more appropriate place in the United States could be found for a Grand Army encampment than Washington. Not only because of the surpassing beauty of the city, or because it is the Capital of the Nation but because of its historical surroundings, made memorable by the Civil War, and because it was here the victorious legions of Grant and Sherman marched in the great review of 1865, the last act before those stupendous armies were disbanded and the men returned again to civil life. So here, again, after twenty-seven years of peace, the old veterans march up that same street. Ah, but what a change has taken place. One sees no young men, with the fire of youth, marching in that great body. Only scarred and grizzled veterans, all over the summit of life and many far down on the other side. It was an imposing sight to witness and an object lesson in patriotism to every American boy and girl; an object lesson also to hundreds of foreign ministers and consuls from every government in the world, who saw marching before them only a feeble remnant of only one side of the great armies of the '60s. Marching, not at the will of some despotic ruler, but for love of the flag, that symbol of liberty they freely offered their lives to preserve. A lesson that should ever occasion warrant, an army would arise to defend that flag, so vast that no power or combined powers in the world could stand before it.

THE PARADE.
Eighty thousand old veterans marched in review before Vice President Morton and Commander-in-Chief Palmer of the G. A. R. Eight hours elapsed from the time the head of the column moved up from Peace monument at the head of Pennsylvania Avenue till the Vice President in his stand saw the back of the last old veteran. Nearly 300,000 strangers and 200,000 Washington people lined the street on either side, and so intense was the interest manifested that the crowd stood up the entire day, without sitting their positions or getting a bite to eat. Your correspondent bought an "old comrade's" barrel for fifty cents, and wheeling it in a good position stood on it during the whole time.

At intervals along the street were raised seats arranged for the school children, who sang patriotic songs as the "old boys" marched by. In one were the colored children and they sang until it seemed their voices would wear out. All the flags were lowered in salute as they passed them and the veterans removed their hats and marched with uncovered heads, while often a Post would give them three hearty cheers. Almost all the posts were uniformed and occasionally one would pass with full accoutrements, guns and knapsacks, ready again for active war; but the great majority seemed to feel that their fighting days are over. One hundred and twenty-seven bands and one hundred and eleven fife and drum corps kept the air ringing with patriotic music; the prevailing selections being "Marching Through Georgia," "Old Lang Syne," "The Girl I Left Behind Me," and "Rally 'Round the Flag." There were thousands of flags and banners of different kinds carried and looking up or down the street was a magnificent sight. Old battle flags would occasionally be carried by till 260 in all were counted. Only a few were unfurled because of their torn and tattered condition; they were wrapped around the poles and tied there with ribbons of red, white and blue. Occasionally though, one, or what remained of it, was thrown to the breeze and the feelings inspired on seeing those old banners, under whose folds thousands and tens of thousands of America's bravest sons laid down their lives, can never be expressed in words. Many an old veteran was seen marching up on crutches, while others passed who had left one of their legs on some Southern battle field. More there were of those that "loosely swung in the idle air the empty sleeve of army blue," but saddest of all were three or four who were wheeled by in little carriages, having lost the use of both limbs.

IN LINE.
Shortly after 10 o'clock the column was put in motion headed by the Citizens' Committee of 100 mounted men. Commander-in-Chief Palmer came next escorted by the old guard of Washington. The Grand Army Battalion of Albany, followed by the sides-de-Camp of General Palmer, riding ten abreast, followed these. Next came a small body of men with wide-brimmed white hats, and carrying canes. They were the escort of the Grand Army, a position of special honor, and none more deserving than they. On their banner we read, "First in the field," and beneath it the words that showed us their identity: "Baltimore, 19th of April, 1861." Yes, there goes the survivors of the old Mississippis and riding at their head is their old Colonel Edward F. Jones, the president man in all the line. Cheers go up as they are recognized, for from their ranks was shed the first blood of the war. Following next came the Union Veterans' Signal Association, and after them the Grand Army march in the order in which the organization was formed in the different States. Illinois takes the lead because in that State the Grand Army was born. At the head, in a carriage rode four Post Commanders of the Department, three of whom had good bye to a leg each before leaving the sunny South.

A little group of men marching together are survivors of the 21st Illinois Infantry, in which regiment Grant commenced his military career as Colonel. Illinois made a fine appearance, turning out about 2,000 men. A badge carried on a pole announced that Wisconsin was now on. On another pole was carried the famous war eagle of the 8th Wisconsin. "Old Abe," a bird that will ever be remembered in American history. Riding with the department officers could be seen the white beard and smiling countenance of Uncle Jerry Rusk. Two Indians dressed in deer skins and with blankets over their shoulders, marched with proud and dignified bearing, neither turning to the right nor to the left. They were scouts and had served Uncle Sam faithfully through four years of war, and now were granted the proud honor of marching with the Grand Army in the Nation's capital.

Pennsylvania was announced by a gorgeous banner, and a huge keystone bore on a pole. The State made a magnificent appearance and was an hour and twenty minutes passing a given point. Twenty-seven bands and thirty-four fife and drum corps were joined with various Posts. One Post made a very pretty appearance by all carrying umbrellas made from American flags, while another Post looked almost as well under white umbrellas. A banner was carried by one Post on which was written "Frosty sons of thunder from Somerset county, Pennsylvania." The old veterans from the coal regions wore coal lamps on their hats, and at their head was a huge tin lamp borne by four comrades. But what brought forth the cheers for Pennsylvania was her old battle flag, 140 in number.

Ohio, as was expected, sent a magnificent turnout that was forty-five minutes in passing. At its head rode the Department commanders, but trailing on foot at the head of the survivors of his old command was ex-President Rutherford B. Hayes. That one little incident was enough to shock the royalty of Europe beyond recovery, but it was thoroughly American. Ohio carried twelve old battle flags torn in shreds like all the others.

New York followed Ohio, and the Empire State carried itself with glory. It turned out some very large Posts, many of which were beautifully uniformed. Following the Department Commanders was Lafayette Post, 175 strong. The members wore white helmets and dark blue suits and marched in perfect time. Now came a Post preceded by Scotch Highlanders, in their picturesque dress, playing on bag pipes. It was a Scotch Post that went into the army wearing the same Scotch kilts, but which they soon gave up because of the bright colors making too good a mark for the enemy. They carried three torn, old battle flags that their regiment had carried during the war. Alexander Post of New York made one of the finest appearances; they were headed by the famous Marine band of Washington, consisting of seventy pieces, the finest in the Union. New York carried seventy-five old battle flags, but few of which I was able to learn anything about. One, however, carried by an old marine, was from Admiral Farragut's Flagship Hartford. Several others were from the field of Gettysburg.

Connecticut was thirteen minutes long. A huge wooden nutmeg and a wooden hammer were carried at the head, while every old veteran wore the nutmeg as a State badge. Massachusetts, the old Bay State, so quick to respond to the call of arms, marched a fine body of men, and the regularity with which they maintained throughout caused them, in my opinion, to present the finest appearance of any State. But between Pennsylvania, Ohio, New York and Massachusetts the honors will fall about alike. But the other States, according to their means, did just as well. Massachusetts never takes her old battle flag from the State, so there were but few in her ranks. The number of Union Jacks and from a card we read: "This was the first Union flag to the top of Lookout Mountain, 8th Ky. Infantry."

West Virginia appears well in line and her colored veterans are cheered.
Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama from the far South send some good representations of mostly colored veterans.
Texas follows these and at their head an old veteran carries on a pole a pair of wide Texas steer horns.
The Dakotas men carry wheat for an emblem, and are followed by the Department of Oklahoma, fourteen in number, but headed by the Oklahoma band.
Now the avenue is filled with white umbrellas, and on a banner we read: "The loyal Tennesseans are here."
Idaho follows with thirty veterans, and Florida with forty.

Now comes the Department of the Potomac, which, out of courtesy, took the left of the line. It is twenty-five minutes in passing and some of the finest Posts in the Union are in this department.
The Naval Veterans Association closed the parade. Marching in this body was some ten or a dozen men, deserving of special mention from the fact they manned the guns that sank the famous Alabama. They are almost all that now remain of the crew of the Kearsarge.
So ended the greatest day the Grand Army ever had. A great day it was, too, for the American Union. Long live the survivors of the Grand Army of the Republic!

LANDER COUNTY SILVER PARTY.

The Austin Revelle commenting upon the political situation and the organization of the Silver Party in Lander county says: "Monday last was an eventful day for the people of Lander county, for it heard the death knell of R. Republicanism and Democracy and the joyous cry of the new born babe, THE SILVER PARTY OF LANDER. Succeeding the actions of the respective Central Committees: one in re-voking its call for a convention, and the other in refusing to hold any, the two met, resolved themselves into an executive committee and formed the third party."

"In doing so they gratified the general demand. Silver with us is first, last and all the time, and all other things of County or State consideration must be subservient to the welfare of it. Actuated by these thoughts and instigated with like sentiments, the members of the committees acted so that nothing could be in the way of a free and united vote, expressive of the demand for the remonetization of the metal. Their action removes all obstacles and gives the means of proving the silver or anti-silver sentiments of every voter in the county."

Eyes and Ears Open

and you will see and hear many things to your advantage. With open eyes you cannot fail to see the advertisement of Simmons Liver Regulator, and with ears open you will constantly hear of the relief it gives millions who suffer with indigestion, Dyspepsia, Constipation or Biliousness. A dose now and then and you'll not know anything about Malaria, that miserable, tired-out feeling.

Still Growing.

A glance at the map of Powning's Addition shows that with but very few exceptions all of the most eligible lots have been sold. Along the entire river front, or Riverside Avenue, there are only three corners left, while on Second street there are but four that are not sold. People wonder how it happens, but Reno keeps on growing just the same, and those who are still hunting bargains should buy a lot in Powning's Addition while lots are yet reasonable.
